

Manager, Mobility Analytics

Can you take the financial and business model complexity of enterprise wireless environments and simplify it into actionable R.O.I. for decision makers in the Global 500? If so this is your chance to join a widely respected and perennial industry leader, Invoice Insight, in the fastest growing part of the business. In this unique role you will be a key member of driven team supporting the full range of activities from global enterprise mobile strategy development, enabling the sales team, supporting the negotiation of customer agreements, and being involved in ongoing relationship management with your refined analytical and presentation skills.

The ideal candidate possesses 2-4 years experience in the enterprise pricing groups at one of 4 major wireless domestic carriers. Alternatively, mobile TEM or other wireless carrier financial experience may be considered. Obviously the selected candidate will have a deep understanding of wireless services and pricing models, full command of the Microsoft Office products, expert-level analytical skills and the ability to present and persuade both in person as well and in net meeting environments. International wireless experience and Hyperion skills are both considered strong pluses.

Location (onsite, not virtual): Manassas VA or Denver, CO.
